Popping some Color!

Sitting here watching fluffy white cotton fuzz float through the air contemplating all I have to share with you.

I'm happy to announce we finally have our wind protection issue figured out after MUCH trial and error and the hubby taking massive action to protect my babies when I was away.

Putting the wind aside our Dahlia Gardens are thriving with over half the plants budding. We had our first bloom popping some color a week earlier than last year. My prediction is dahlias and sunflowers by beginning of July. Will let you know soon on the sweetpeas. I've had some troubles with them but they seem to be pulling out of whatever the issue was. Probably to much heat right off the bat or maybe even to much fertilization.

Over the next few weeks we will be getting our All Dahlia'd Up headquarters all set up. Which includes prepping our bouquet prep tent and painting the trim on our garden shed. I'm sure you can guess what color if you've been following us for any length of time.

In July our first official public appearance will be at the Mid Summer Garden Faire July 9th. We missed it last year as it fell on our daughters sweet 16. We won't talk about how old she's turning this year. But we will say she will be working for All Dahlia'd Up this summer. She's got an incredible eye for detail and borders OCD at times, comes in handy in the cut flower business. It's so fun to be able to work with her in this capacity. We will be doing a flower frog workshop for a limited number of people at the faire.

Should be a blast.

Our Farm Tour and Make-n-Take Bouquet dates are almost sold out, only 2 spots of July 30 and 4 spots for August 13. We've decided to keep the ticket price low. Another thing that is special is nutrition educator Winona Benson will be preparing our AK grown tasting service at both tours!

So BRING ON JULY, Bring on Dahlia harvest!

P.S. Almost forgot we have our first wedding at our wedding venue "This Place" on the 24th. Here we go!

Hello my name is Misty VanderWeele,

I'm so excited you stopped in for a read.

I've grown Dahlias for nearly 20 years and founded All Dahlia'd Up the summer of 2014. With all the warm weather we've been having, coupled with an early spring we have seen our first bloom with numerous getting ready to POP!

Have you hear how we began? Check it out on our Facebook page.
